Cura.

Design: wiege

Model 249/5, black leather.
The slender, linear form of the upholstery and the fascinating frame structure give Cura a classically elegant appearance.

The striking manner in which the tube terminations connect to the paired steel bands that outline the form make the back section of Cura particularly intriguing.

Cura. A modern classic.

Linear and elegant, classic and distinctive, spacious and high-quality – Cura, the cantilever chair designed by wiege is a high-calibre lounge chair.

Besides the slender, linear contours of the upholstery, Cura's unmistakable uniqueness is due to the special frame structure: a bright chromium-plated steel tube forms both the classic cantilever supporting structure and the optimal location for the armrests. The rear-facing tube terminations connect strikingly to the front, vertical tube structure by means of bright chromium-plated bands in flat steel. The paired steel bands outline, hold and support the single-section, fully upholstered seat that is accentuated as a clear, "architectural" shape by flat side facings and rectangular corners.

Cura marks a new interpretation of the classic cantilever principle. The design is familiar yet refreshingly different: light, elegant and – understated form aside – very inviting. Cura is comfortable and characterful. It does not dominate but will turn heads, merging naturally with any interior design theme – in a foyer, a lounge or at home.

The clear, understated form, based on architectural principles, is expressed in the form of gentle contours to create an accommodating and relaxing chair.

Cura. Sustainable value.

The sophisticated upholstery technique emphasizes the high quality of the design: the accommodating upholstered element comprises a steel frame with tension springs embedded in foam. This allows slender cushioning that provides pleasantly firm and lasting seated comfort.

The exchangeable, handcrafted covers may be specified in either an exceptionally high-quality woollen fabric or superbly soft leather.

Cura low tables are coordinated with the materials and design of the chairs.

Depending on a given interior design theme and individual preferences, armrests may optionally be specified with contacts in moulded wood with walnut veneer or with fully upholstered pads to match the covers.

Two horizontal, outstitched seams on the curved section underline the coherently designed, gently contoured backrest and seat sections.

Cura. Sit in style.

Such a pleasant and comfortable sitting experience calls for the addition of a convenient platform for magazines or refreshments: low tables, square and rectangle, complete the Cura range. They have a skid-base frame structure in bright chromium-plated steel tube that harmonizes perfectly with the cantilever chair. The tables are 36 cm (14 $\frac{1}{8}$ ") high, with surfaces measuring 54 x 54 cm (21 $\frac{1}{4}$ " x 21 $\frac{1}{4}$ ") or 60 x 150 cm (23 $\frac{3}{8}$ " x 59"). The 20 mm ($\frac{3}{4}$ ") table tops are finished with real wood veneer.

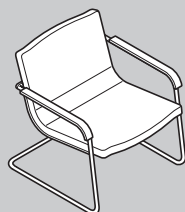

Cura chairs and tables create an atmosphere of well-being that stands for both aesthetic finesse and appreciation of the comforts of life.
